To whom it may concern,

During the past 4 1/2 years as a disciple of Bhagwan Shree Rajveesh I've been mostly connected with the sanyas-activities like Amitabh, the Rajveesh Meditation Center in Amsterdam, the ashram in Poona, India and since ± 1 1/2 year I live in this ashram in Amsterdam, together with ± 55 other sanyasins, as part of "De Stad Rajveesh" Commune in Holland.

Bhagwan gave our commune the name Sadhana, which means : spiritual practise. It's a working community in which I do the laundry at the moment. Very ordinary but added with this special flavour of ... Bhagwan! Making the work into a worship, enjoying it. I'm 28 years and I've done many different things ; from a social science student to a cook to working in factories and on the fields ... but in fact it doesn't really matter what

I'm doing but how, though it's very helpfull to have a possitive attitude around you.

Bhagwan's tremendous love is reflected in the work, the dance we dance, the walls we build, the clothes I fold, the contacts we make. He is guiding me in the process of inner growth, encouraging to look at myself in all my different moods, to become aware of all my created barriers that stop me from opening up to myself, to others, to life. And the commune supports, as we're all on the same "track". A Buddhafield is created far away from the physical presence of our Master.

Post July to be in Rajneeshpuram at the Second Annual World Celebration was such a beautiful experience: to be together with 15.000 people and sit silently at the feet of our Master; such precious moments of love, turning inside and celebration!

Slowly I become more aware of Bhagwan's message to share love and care for each other and the things around us, starting from inside to let real freedom happen and celebrate life.

No words are needed, truth cannot be spoken, it has its own language in silence.

In gratitude to my beloved Master,
Ma Veet Apeksha
